Karma Chameleon

The 14th Australasian Cystic Fibrosis Conference (ACFC) has been 20 months in the making, and now there is just one month to go. It feels a bit like we've planned five different Conferences, because the rising and falling fortunes of the pandemic have continually changed the boundaries of what kind of events and travel will be possible.

We've tried to stay agile, we've focussed on putting together a knockout product, and now, after almost two years of tweaks and adjustment, we are ready for a little good karma to come our way.

Following the recent COVID-19 outbreaks in June this year, Cystic Fibrosis Australia acted quickly to move all Conference activities online. It is lucky that we have Consumer Connect at our fingertips.

The uncertainty generated by the COVID-19 pandemic has affected our Conference registrations and a month out we have less than half the number of committed attendees compared to the ACFC Perth in 2019.

I know we are all a bit tired of Zoom and Google meetings, but I can assure you that this will be a different experience entirely. This is still your CF Conference and your opportunity to gather with like-minded individuals.

The Lay and Medical Committees have agonised over this content for almost two years and I can guarantee you both programs are outstanding.

Consumer Connect allows for great connectivity and the learning experience will be extremely valuable. Join us online this August for some good times, good ideas and good Karma.
