Imagine being told you had only six months left to live.

At just 18 years old, Jess was given this devastating news. But instead of accepting this fate, she fought and continues to fight for her future.

Meet Jess.

Jess was diagnosed at birth with cystic fibrosis. Doctors advised her parents that Jess was unlikely to live past the age of six. Incredibly, Jess has done remarkably well and is now 27 years old and is still fighting to ensure the CF Community are heard and represented.

Throughout her entire life, doctors have kept putting an expiry date on her life, and Jess has kept defying these odds. It hasn't been an easy journey.

At 18 years old, Jess was given the devastating news that she had only six months left to live. Jess was so unbelievably sick, she couldn't even fathom making the whole six months. She went through all the emotions, terrified, shocked, sad, heartbroken.

However rather than letting this new 'date' of six months, affect her, she used it as motivation to keep fighting. She focused entirely on her health, quit work, studied from home and spent every minute fighting to stay alive.

Jess is now on Trikafta, which is allowing her to live her best life. She can have a future, with her husband, and realise some of her life dreams and ambitions. This includes, having a baby in November this year! There are so many wonderful outcomes for Jess since taking Trikafta that her life has been entirely transformed.

Jess is a strong advocate for the CF Community, helping fight and create awareness of cystic fibrosis and the needs this community have. Jess partnered with Cystic Fibrosis Australia to help accelerate the listing of Trikafta on the Pharmaceutical Benefits Scheme so that it could be made affordable for all eligible Australians.

For those suffering with cystic fibrosis, Jess wants them to remember, 'not to give up, don't give up on yourself, you are stronger than you think'.

Like Jess, there are thousands of Australians who live with cystic fibrosis and hope that one day, there is a cure found.

By donating before June 30, your tax-deductible gift will help Cystic Fibrosis Australia focus on long-term outcomes, including research into better treatment and ultimately the hope of finding a cure.

Your donation will help CFA continue the important advocacy work, ensuring our voices are heard by Government, Media and Health Professionals so that the CF Community can be represented appropriately.

Your donation will also ensure that we can continue the fight not only for Jess, but for the many children yet to be born with cystic fibrosis, so that one day we hope to find a cure.

Thank you to everyone who has donated and for being part of the solution so that thousands of people can live life unaffected by cystic fibrosis.

Please consider making a recurring donation to support CFA's on-going work
